

The Price you Pay

(Hadley/Scott)

I see a different moon
When you're not here
It seems so distant and alone

It's like the magic's gone
And all I see
Is cold light shining off a stone
It's only loneliness
But in a way I guess

*That's the price you pay for someone you love
That's the price you pay
The price you pay*

Time doesn't move the same when you're not here
Between the midnight and the dawn
That's when I miss you most
What can I say
Everything changes when you're gone
It's only loneliness
But in a way I guess

*That's the price you pay for someone you love
That's the price you pay
The price you pay*

I see a different moon
When you're not here
When you're not here
